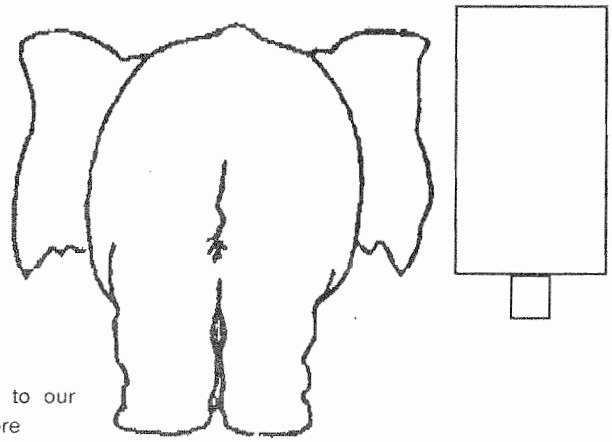
UNSUNG DUNG CONTEST

Readers may remember that ZOOS' PRINT announced an UNSUNG DUNG Contest in which readers could try their creative skills at designing Invertebrate Graphics using the Elephant Dung article by Dr. B.A. Daniel and the above drawing.



We had a good response to our contest. Some of the more creative ones are given below. Congratulations to the talented (?) winners.

ATTENTION INVERTEBRATES !!

Attention Invertebrates !!
Welcome to Elephantine Dung piles.
'Invertebrates' pride.
Vertebrates envy'

Here ends the search for your taste. Come, taste it once. Make it a habit.

Caution:
Beware of Dr. Daniel.

PLOOP !

Ploop ! Oh, What Lovely Dung
Hurray ! The Partys Begun
Spiders, Ants, Beetles All
Come and Have a Ball
But be Quick As I Fear
Soon This Treat will Disappear

"THE DUNGY WORLD"
(OF ELEPHANT FAME!!)

"Shit" is a word
often abused
in parlance variously hued.

Dung is shitty
Dung is gritty and Dung is eatty too.

Oh ! No - some would recoil Oh ! Yes - I would invite.

Come have a peep into
the "Dungy World"
A Lifey wonderland
even `Alice' would have loved.

Meet here Mites and flies and Beetles large and small, Butterflies hover around and termites search for holes.

Here ants breakfast
and spiders take to lunch, Crickets not just chirp
but invite millepedes to munch.

Its a world found almost anywhere,
on road, a rock or a river bned-Say, be not afraid or spiteful of Dung found here and there.

Life is colourful and varied and present in myriad places, Life is precious and connected through patterns of many nuances.

The `Dung World' is but an instance to marvel and sustain and think before you utter `shit' in derision yet again !!
